Introduction

We need your support

The Hopi & Navajo Tribes live with reverence and respect for all things and have done so since inheriting the land from their ancestors. They view their land as sacred and treat it as such, but they have encountered a monumental problem: Their water has been tainted with deadly chemicals. It is time for the world to band together and protect The Hopi & Navajo, who have been protecting planet Earth for hundreds of years.

Something Must Be Done

Arsenic 3, Arsenic 5, Uranium and Vanadium are all chemicals that have been found in the water supply on Hopi & Navajo land. The Arsenic levels are 2 to 4 times higher than the EPA allows as safe. Arsenic is known to cause many types of cancer including skin cancer, lung cancer, and prostate cancer, to name a few. Vanadium can cause vascular disease, paralysis, and can damage the entire nervous system.

The two Tribes have seen dramatic rises in diabetes and cancer in not only their elders, but the youth as well. The average lifespan of the natives who live on Hopi land is a staggering 47 years of age.
