Introduction

We need your support

This project will empower youth in S. Africa! Maria Gaba runs an orphanage and the young people she cares for will learn business skills & a way to support themselves in the future.

She began this project with a small food truck.

She makes enough each day to buy supplies for the next day.

With your help, she can buy more equipment, and make a profit as she serves her community a delicious lunch.

Maria hopes to grow food and start a training program where youth will learn how to run a restaurant and profits will help support Maria's House/Orphanage.

Something Must Be Done

Women of color across the U.S. and in developing countries lack the capital, access of training, information & connections to be able to create a business for themselves that will generate income and generational wealth within their family.

Maria takes care of dozens of children in her own home who have their basic needs met with resources she has been acquiring through the generosity of others.

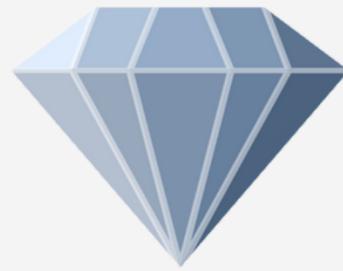

Maria has always wanted to grow food and have sustainable ways of providing.

Maria participates in an online mentoring program by Jhoanny Perez, a coach who has experience opening restaurants & mentoring others in creating this type of business. Maria has rapport with Jhoanny because they worked together in 2015 and 2016 on two different Airline Ambassadors missions.

This training program will guide Maria into looking for a space, acquiring licenses, food safety training, administrative skills and operations skills to run a successful business.
